

Television Journalism During Terror Attacks

Mogensen, Kirsten

Publication date:
2007

Document Version
Early version, also known as pre-print

Citation for published version (APA):
Mogensen, K. (2007). Television Journalism During Terror Attacks. Paper presented at Media War Conflict, Launch Conference, Milwaukee, United States. <http://www.warandmedia.org/events.htm#mwc>

General rights

Copyright and moral rights for the publications made accessible in the public portal are retained by the authors and/or other copyright owners and it is a condition of accessing publications that users recognise and abide by the legal requirements associated with these rights.

- Users may download and print one copy of any publication from the public portal for the purpose of private study or research.
- You may not further distribute the material or use it for any profit-making activity or commercial gain.
- You may freely distribute the URL identifying the publication in the public portal.

Take down policy

If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact rucforsk@kb.dk providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

Television Journalism

During Terror Attacks

Public Service

- How can journalists help society through a terror related acute national crisis that may threaten the basic structure and core values of the social system?
- The case of September 11, 2001.
- ABC, NBC, CBS, CNN, Fox News.

Professional Norms

- Professional ethics discusses moral solutions to professional problems. Janik (1994):
- Professionals' problems by their very nature are problems specific to professional practice, i.e., ethical problems that arise in the course of carrying out the tasks for which one has been professionally trained...

Methods

- Personal interviews with 37 journalists that covered the events for ABC, CBS, NBC, CNN, FOX News and MSNBC.
- Content analysis of the coverage the first 24 hours.

First aid to audience members

- Rational thinking is supported by timely, accurate information; admission of and promptly correction of mistakes; explanation of conditions regarding production of the coverage; involvement of the audience.

Senses can be relieved by downplaying of sensation.

Feelings can be soothed with the help of comfort and positive news stories.

Security is improved by national security considerations.

The figure is inspired by C.G. Jung (Jacobi 1987).

Information as soon as possible

Honesty is the best policy

We're all in this together

We cannot show emotion

Reassurance is a by-product of journalism

Sensationalism the normal; downplay the sensational

Avoid stereotypes

Avoid national sources with extremist views

Find the good among the bad

Journalism is a public service

Development of professional norms

Viewers' satisfaction?

- 9 out of 10 watched the coverage on television.
- Most were satisfied with the coverage.
- Praise: Accuracy, immediacy, commitment to continuous coverage, professionalism of anchors, video footage.
- Complaints: Repetition of information and pictures, too sensational.
- (WestGroup Research 2001).

Watchdog for democracy

Moral reasoning

Government officials as sources

- National leadership
- Rescue workers

Respect for national security

